

Hello Dragonfly Parents,

It has been so awesome getting to know you and your children (and many Grandparents as well)! I can't believe it has only been three weeks since the start of the school year. Your children may still be adjusting to a routine and getting oriented to the environment, but I see so many great growths and discoveries every day. The returning children are enjoying helping and sharing their expertise, as well as, helping the new children feel comfortable and welcome. Our community is so lucky to have five caring Kindergarteners to assist when needed.

We have been showing the new children lessons to help aid in their independence, such as: the dressing frames, pouring water, using tongs and cleaning up after themselves. They have also been working on lessons that help care for the environment, such as: watering plants, washing the windows, cleaning underlays, and vacuuming. I have already heard wonderful comments from parents about the progress they have seen at home. We love hearing from you and of course, I am looking forward to talking with you at conferences in a few weeks.

With the start of Fall, we have put out seasonal work such as, leaf rubbing, sunflower seed picking, and pumpkin pillow sewing. In the Language area, we have parts of the apple, the leaf, and the spider. One afternoon, we baked some scones to enjoy with the class after nap time.

I look forward to many more fun and productive days with your children. Thank you for all your support and communication.

Sincerely,

Ms. Lea and Ms. Barbara
